The CHARMAN said—Gentlemen, with your permission we will consider the report as read and trust that it has afforded general satisfaction. The work on new vessels and engines has been in excess of any previous half year, but the number of ships docked has been somewhat less than during the corresponding six months of the proceeding year. The progress made in the construction of the new dock has been fairly satisfactory. The excavation is well advanced and good solid bottom has been found on which about 100 feet of the concrete foundation has been laid. and the laving of the granite masonry will commeuce in about a month. The Admiralty have paid two instalments of the free grant and loan and a third payment is now about due. The increase of capital to which your consent will be Since Tuesday night the position of affairs asked presently is considered desirable by the Directors, consequent upon the heavy expenditure incurred in the construction of the new dock and the large payments on secount of the new workshops and machinery. The additiona capital will enable us to pay off the severa mortgages on the property and lessen our large overdrawn account at the Bank. Mr. Palmer, also found that certain extra work to the contract had been done by the plaintiff, and this he valued at $600. In the second agreement there was also a clause $8,025.68 to this psouliar effect—that Wong Amow was not to make any claim for extres unless specially ordered in writing by Mr. Musso. The extra work reported on by Mr. Palmer was, however, done previously to the making of this stipulation, and would therefore, not apply to it. The de-fendant paid the plaintiffinstalments amounting to $1,622, but the defendant appeared to have adopted an extraordinary course in making the payments to the plaintiff, as he obtained from the latter a promissory note for each payment, When the written agreement was given to the plaintiff to sign he was told it did agree with his original verbal agreement, and it was only when hasubsequently saw the plans and specificstions that he found it did not.
